had originally been built to house feathered chickens.

Today the reporter laughed to discover that the hen house had undergone a transformation. It has been partitioned into two compartments.

In one roosts about thirty Rhode Island Red, White Orpington, Plymouth Rock and mixed breed chickens. In the other roosts Betty and Alice. There are three windows in the coop. The chickens have two of them.

The chickens have also white-washed perches and on the floor.

Alice and Betty have such a tiny bed room on the floor. On the walls are book shelves filled. From the "bookshelves" "Flaming Youth," "Tramping on Life," by Harry Kemp who lived in a couple of live rooms, including Union Square, and found anything but happiness; and others.

LUG WATER

Blue screen curtains give the chicken coop an odd touch from without but curtain it within. On a deal table sits that homelike of high country implements—on the floor.

Garland has running water from a newly erected windmill of Dutch pattern, also Mrs. Garland. But the water for the chickens and the two dwellers, Alice and Betty, is "tugged" in an old tin pail.

The girls have an old lamp to light their night. The chickens must cluck in darkness.

CONSTABLES HELD IN $2000 FOR FRAUD

William B. Collins, forty-year-old, constable, of No. 8, Cushman road, Brighton, was before Judge Stone in District Court today, charged with larceny of $200 and obtaining money under false pretenses. He was held in $2000 for one week, pending investigation.

Collins, according to the police, visited Cambridge businessmen, offering advertising for an official report of the police's hall. He had been given no authority to do so, police say.

He is said to have worked the same road in Brooklyn, shortly before the fall of the policeman of that town.

SCENE OF BUFFERING

Apartment house, No. 133 Peterboro street, Back Bay, where 200 tenants were subjected to great hardship when water was cut off for several days, and had to be paid taxes.

CITY BLAMED IN WATER FAME BY LANDLORD

Two hundred persons, many invalids, some young children, occupants of the big apartment house, No. 133 Peterboro street, spent twenty-four hours between noon Friday and noon today in a Sahara-like aridity, without water for drinking, for family use or for the sick room, by reason of someone's carelessness or neglect.

James Shadron, one of the owners of the property, says the deprivation of invalids, expectant mothers and little children of one of the prime necessities of life was brought about by the city water department officials carelessly neglecting their duty.

The water was turned off because the building was four years in arrears on water payments. Shadron declared that the water would be turned on immediately.

Today he says he was shocked to learn that his tenants had been deprived of water all night and most of the forenoon.

MIXUP IN ORDERS

The records at City Hall and at the Albany street yard of the distribution branch of the water service also show that a mixup over the telephone of the number of the building on Peterboro street where the water was to be turned on.

The payments were made in the afternoon. At Albany street the order was received about 5 p. m. to turn on the water at No. 133 Peterboro street. The water had not been turned off there and the man who went out on the job so reported.

Among the thirty-three families living at No. 133 Peterboro street, there are several mothers, several children, and several invalids. The water was cut off for several days, and had to be paid taxes.

TENANT IS VERY ILL

Recently ill in bed for six weeks, and recovering from several operations, is Mrs. Kathleen Morrison, 133 Peterboro street, who is the mother of a five-year-old child.

Physicians ordered regular bathing for her, and warned that catching cold might be fatal, yet for water she has only what her sister is able to carry to her, and she has to do so without even help.

FORBES REPRIES CRITICS ON RECOVERY

Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans Bureau at Washington, whose career has been under investigation at the capital, is suffering from angina pectoris, a heart disease from which his father died. He is at the home of his sister, Mrs. Harry J. Jenkins, No. 131 Colonial road, Brighton, where he has been since Sunday preceding Thanksgiving.

He is under the care of Dr. John H. Cady, of No. 31 Adams street, Dorchester, who is connected with the Boston vocational school of the Veterans Bureau, and Dr. J. J. Thomas, neurologist.

"My brother suffered a heart attack in San Francisco last August, which confined him to a hospital there for eleven weeks," said Mrs. Jenkins today.

"After leaving the hospital," she stated, "he went to Seattle. In that city he was stricken again and was two weeks in a hospital there."

"Colonel Forbes wants to make a comprehensive statement to the newspapers just as soon as Dr. Cady will let him," said Mrs. Jenkins. "He would have spoken long ago but for his illness, which has not but incapacitated him."

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL'S Plea for Equal Pay

Editor Boston American:

The people of Boston voted for equal pay for women teachers when the question was last submitted. They should vote for it again on Tuesday next.

Equal pay for men and women rendering equal service already prevails throughout the Boston school system except in the case of a comparatively small group of women high school teachers.

About 70 per cent. of these women have others dependent on them.

Equal pay has already been granted in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and elsewhere. Boston now stands almost alone among the large cities of this country in paying women teachers less than men for the same work.

TO REPRINT 7,450 BALLOTS FOR SOMERVILLE ELECTION

Registrars of voters in Somerville today ordered reprinted 7,450 ballots for the city election next Tuesday to be used in the precincts of Wards 3 and 4. The names of the candidates for the city clerk's office were also printed on the ballots.

HUNDREDS ENDORSE EQUAL PAY FOR TEACHER'S CRUSADE

PROMINENT CITIZENS OF BOTH SEXES URGE "YES" VOTE ON TUESDAY

stand has been endorsed by hundreds of prominent persons of both sexes. On Tuesday the issue will be decided by the voters.

DESERVE EQUAL PAY.

Mr. Voter and Mrs. Voter. We hope and trust you will cast your ballot in favor of women teachers being paid as much as men teachers. There is no reason why the pay should not be equal.

The days of the petulant discounting the pay envelope have passed. Business men discarded the idea long ago. The growth of high-salaried women executives proves this assertion.

Talk that teachers will outgrow the pay scale is foolish. This from one who, through nine grades in school, took "beatings" (they call it corporal punishment) from both sexes. This reporter can recall two staid male teachers in high school, for every female inclined to be the least bit militant.

Twenty years ago it was common among high school pupils to wear elaborate discussions upon the lady-like characteristics of certain male teachers. The principal of the school—it was here in Massachusetts—attended by this reporter was known for almost two generations as "Flossie."

He had a swaying gait, a soft voice, and was a plunger in rubber heels, wearing them when they were as radical as many men.

WOMEN BEST TEACHERS.

In the same school was a nice fat lady teacher known as "Ma," and so tough she wore a moustache. Unless things have greatly changed this reporter will have no hesitancy in submitting his bulky son to two women teachers. And if he expresses any sympathy it will be for the teachers, not for the boy.

So on Tuesday vote "Yes" and put women high school teachers in Boston on the same basis as their counterparts in the Boston schools as well as in other communities.

The question has stirred up much discussion even though men like William G. O'Hare, Boston School Committee member, has declared for the plan.

The American received a letter signed "B. Perkins, Instructor, Boston Clerical School, Roxbury," endorsing the circular issued by the Boston School Committee.

This circular emphasizes the oft-repeated charge that equal pay for women teachers will result in the feminization of the all-boys' schools. "High school boys," the circular set forth, "must be trained by men. They have been taught by women in the first eight grades."

Equal pay will aggravate the present shortage of men teachers. Equal pay is driving men from the schools in the West.

POINT TO MEDFORD HIGH.

To offset this allegation, the women teachers simply point with minor or less pride to Medford High school, the football team of which institution recently won the Suburban Intercollegiate title.

The boys of this school are taught by women teachers, and the fact that they won the football championship is evidence that they are not effeminate, according to the Boston High School teachers.

Furthermore, sporting experts agree that the suburban high schools, with women teachers, have little difficulty in defeating the all-boy schools of Boston with their male instructors.

The circular sent out by the School Committee also declared that the women high school teachers are not underpaid, and that they are single women with few if any dependents.

WOMEN REPLY.

To this the women teachers reply that the majority have dependents, and that they are underpaid so long as they receive less money than the men for doing the same work.

The School Committee also said that the project would add $1,500,000 annually to Boston's taxes. The directors of the Boston Chamber of Commerce took much the same attitude.

They announced that by a unanimous vote they had approved the report of their committee on municipal and metropolitan affairs opposing the increases to the school teachers.

The directors stated they unanimously decided the proposition is a question of digressing from the question of equal pay for women teachers and should be left by the voters of the city to the school committee for determination.

FIVE CONSIDERATIONS.

The considerations which seemed compelling to the directors in determining them to oppose the increase, according to the statement, were:

"1.—An affirmative vote to improve the school system.

"2.—The question of the adjustment of salaries in the school department should rest with the school committee. If the administrative discretion of the school committee is changed by a vote of the citizens, it will establish an evil precedent which may be followed by other groups of municipal employees, large and small.

"3.—The equal pay measure, if adopted as proposed, would create a differential of about $1,250 between women high school teachers and women elementary teachers.

"4.—The question of pay for the women teachers of the high schools is one of many salary questions involving millions of dollars and it is unwise to select this one for a mandate by the voters.

"5.—The City of Boston does not know definitely what the cost would be, but it is quite clear that the first immediate cost would exceed the sum authorized by the High School Women's Club."

ANSWER BY O'HARE.

In contradiction to this finding by the Chamber of Commerce, School Committee member O'Hare, himself a former teacher, had this to say:

"The differentiation of salaries to the high schools is apparently computed on a basis of sex," said Mr. O'Hare. "By far the greater number of men teachers in high schools are called junior masters. The vast majority of women teachers in the high schools are called assistants. Both of these groups have the same qualifications as to education, both take the same examinations to qualify for their teaching service, and both render the same required teacher effort."

"Yet at the outset, the men receive $12 more than the women and when both are an maximum salary the differentiation in favor of the men is $74. These are facts that cannot be disputed."

"Strangely enough when both men and women begin their high school teaching careers, both are called junior assistants and both receive the same salary award. Why the discrimination later?

MEDFORD HIGH CHAMPIONS

"No one in favor of equalization of salaries on a senior basis desires to have the salaries of the men lowered. They do not ask to have women appointed to our all-boys high schools. They merely say, equalize salaries wherever inequality exists by bringing the underpaid teachers up to the same level that their full-paid brethren now enjoy."

"Some folks talk of the cost of the measure. In Boston $1 in taxes raises $16,000 in revenue. At the outside figure this measure will not cost more than 51¢1,000 or 16 or 27 cents in the tax levy."

"I am trying to serve as best I can the children, the parenthood, the teacherhood, the entire citizenry of our beloved city. I am not favoring one group or sex or sex of teachers as against any other. If you believe as I do, vote 'yes' on 'equal pay' and right a long-standing injustice."

Miss Keefe Wins on Points in Teachers' Pay Debate

Miss Helen F. Keefe, president of the High School Women's Club of Boston, and Richard J. Lane, chairman of the Boston School Committee, man of the Boston School Committee, debated before the Women's City Club in Pilgrim Hall on "equal pay for equal service."

In losing the debate, Miss Keefe won on points, although Chairman Lane made a strong finish.

Miss Keefe presented an orderly array of arguments showing how the women high school teachers of Boston had lived uncomplainingly for 18 years to obtain equal pay with men from the school committee.

Several hundred women heard a been brought to bear on the Legislature. He added that it might mean that "strong men" could not be secured hereafter to serve on the School Committee.

Council Candidates State Stand on Equal Pay Move

Members of the Women's Republican Club learned today how candidates for City Council stand on the question of equal pay for equal service for teachers.

Daniel W. Lane and Louis Lebo, who are for it, Joseph M. Hoffman and Henry E. Hagen, who are against it, James T. Parvill and James T. Moriarty failed to appear before the women.

Several hundred women heard a starring address in favor of equal pay for equal work by Miss Helen F. Keefe, a teacher at the Dorchester High School and president of the Boston High School Women's Club. This was followed by a weak reply against the measure by Albert F. Lloyd, president of the Boston School Committee's Economic Association.

While no vote was taken on the measure, the majority of club women present plainly showed by their applause of Miss Keefe's address that they were behind the movement and would vote "Yes" on the question at the polls Tuesday.

Pointing out that the city council, as a body, has no control over the money which the city of Boston spends in its school administration, Daniel W. Lane wound up his address by endorsing the women teachers.

"Last year I voted for equal pay for equal work," he said. "This year I have made a study of the matter again and I will vote the same way."

Louis Lebovitz expressed like sentiments.

"Why do women feel they deserve the same pay as men?" said Miss Keefe. "Because they teach the same subjects. They have the same amount of work and duties to perform as the men."

We want to be paid for the service we render. The question of dependents does not enter into the matter at all. Nearly every other large city in the country has adopted the system and it is noteworthy that none have reverted to the old."

Miss Keefe said the Budget committee had estimated the initial cost of the new measure would be about $400,000 with $1,800,000 as the ultimate expenditure.

N. Y. AUTO SHOW WILL OPEN JAN. 5

The New York Automobile Show opens January 5 at the 125th Fifth Avenue Armory and a large force of workmen is now busy transforming the huge building into an artistic setting for the display of the new models.

Under the plan of the work is under way, Director Samuel Arch, in charge of the decorative scheme, has groups of artists and modelers at work in down-town studios preparing the minor features of the art work.

Louis F. Anderson, the sculptor, who is modeling the statue of the "Goddess of Transportation," the main art feature of the Automobile Show, for which Miss Catherine J. Moore was selected to pose, has practically completed his assignment. This statue will be reproduced over and over again as the decorative scheme calls for one in each of the eighty-four courts.

In still other studios Mr. Arch has artists busy on the two huge paintings that will cover the ends of the exhibition hall, depicting the contrast between the most ancient and most modern forms of transportation in the Old and New World.

YOUNG TEACHER RESIGNS JOB TO WED HIS 'TRUE LOVE' OF 69

AGED WIDOW WON YOUTH FROM GIRL

North Andover has again become a hotbed of gossip.

"Now he intended to quit working altogether and live on his wife's income."

"Where will they live?"

"Don't you think she is really much older than she puts on?"

Questions like this are being raised over back fences, on street corners, and in fact, everywhere in North Andover when the townspeople meet.

When the wedding bells ring out announcing the marriage of Mrs. Ingalls and Bennett, some time during the Christmas holidays, there will be many tears shed by a youthful rival vanquished in the game of love by the widow.

The Boston American Mrs. Ingalls, who declares she has found true love at last, disclosed the details of the battle of love. And behind her silver-rimmed spectacles the old lady's eyes sparkled merrily as she told of her victory.

"You see, John was going steady with a young girl in her early twenties when he and I met. I knew about the girl, and thought she showed rare judgment in selecting John."

"I was attracted to John as soon as I met him, for he seemed to be the very man needed to fill the void left by my dead husband."

"John asked me to go to the moving pictures with him. I was lonely and simply crazy to get out, so I seized the opportunity and went with him. I guess I shocked the neighbors but I did not care about that. I was going to the pictures with John. This was all I cared about."

"Then John took me again. For we were going quite regularly, and I felt that a real friendship was fast developing. But that other girl was with them. John still went with her."

ONE FOR ONE, SHE SAYS

"Now, in the days when I was a girl a fellow only had one girl. A girl would not stand for sharing the company of their young men with another. I still believe in that idea. That was to be the test, and I feared it. But it had to come sooner or later."

"One night last winter John came and asked me to go to the movies. I knew he had asked the other girl to go that night, and I told him."

"Well, I'll take both of you," he said. Right there I put him to the test. I had been fearing. I told him that first of all I did not think it was right that he should make two 'dates' for the same night. Then I told him that it would have to be either the other girl or me, as I could not see going along as a third party."

KNEW SHE HAD WON

"John went out and in a few minutes came back whistling. He told me that he had been over to get the other girl, but that she had not appeared. I knew John was telling me the truth. I knew he had not been near the other girl or the spot he was to meet her. I knew then that John wanted me, and of the other girl."

28,000 TROOPS SHOE FIRM TO TO ATTACK IN RUN AN OPEN VERA CRUZ SHOP IN LYNN

New York, Dec. 8.—The Mexican government has stopped all cable telegraphic messages to and from Mexico via Galveston and has imposed a strict censorship on all plain language messages because of the revolutionary troubles. The Western Union Telegraph and the All-American Cable announced today.

Mexico City, Dec. 8.—Twenty-thousand Federal troops, it is said, are converging upon the Vera Cruz revolutionary zone. They are under command of General Joaquín Amaro, Juan Andrew Almanzan and Pascual Tepele.

Mexico City, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—General Plutarco Calles has renounced his candidacy for the Presidency and has offered his services to President Obregon against the insurgent forces in Vera Cruz and Jalisco.

The President has accepted the offer and has named General Calles as head of the Federal opposition to the de la Huerta-Schuchers rebels.

President Obregon has issued a manifesto to the people, calling on them for support against the military coup, branding it as a conspiracy against the common people on the part of reactionary conservatives.

General Enrique Estrada, chief of military operations in Jalisco, who has joined the revolt against the central government, is said to have thousands of followers.

teen manufacturers and workers over a reduction in price of shoes. The manufacturers wanted to lower the price of shoes. The workers were agreeable to this, and offered to compromise on a 10 per cent. reduction. The present system, and the closing of the factories on Fridays is also involved in the dispute.

Officials of the State Board who have been in Lynn two weeks studying conditions, find the permit system detrimental to both workers and manufacturers.

War was declared today between the firm of Gregory and Hood, the largest shoe manufacturing concern in Lynn, and the American Shoe Workers of America when the Gregory and Hood Company announced that they will resume business Monday and Tuesday of next week under the open shop system.

The firm intends to conduct its business under its own plan, reserving the right to hire and discharge such of its employees as it sees fit, without obtaining permission from the union.

It was further announced that such of the old employees of Gregory and Hood as are willing to abide by conditions laid down by the firm will be taken back.

It was intimated at the head-quarters of the shoe workers that a strike may result from the shoe company's ultimatum, and that the union will never stand for the open shop system in Lynn.

Members of the Amalgamated voted four to one in favor of accepting the recommendations of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration in regard to settling the controversy between the firm and the union.

London, Dec. 8.—Edgerton Wake, chief agent of the Labor party, officially announced today that there would be no Liberal-Labor coalition.

London, Dec. 8 (A.P.).—What Prime Minister Baldwin will do, now that his party has no majority over opposition and how the administration of the country will be carried on, are acute questions to which the public, the press, the politicians and His Majesty's ministers are trying to find satisfactory answer.

One of the favorite guesses—and the Daily Express states it as a fact—is that Mr. Baldwin will resign both the Prime Ministership and the leadership of the Conservatives.

But such action would not settle the problem of how to carry on the government, as it is obvious that his movement, whichever party might belong, could not command a sufficient majority of his own followers in the House of Commons to enable him to conduct the administration.

Political writers are exhausting their ingenuity in seeking a solution of the situation. Nearly all of them turn on two alternatives, either that some coalition is possible, or that the Conservatives, as the strongest party numerically, will continue the government by the suffrages of the opposition parties. Such an arrangement, it is admitted would produce a colorless administration as anything of a contentious nature would have to be excluded from the government's program with the result that there could be little progress in legislation.

OFFICIAL WAR FILMS FOR VETERANS

Actual motion pictures taken on the western front at the United States army, will be shown at "Temple" on Monday under the auspices of the State Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The proceeds will be used for the relief fund of the organization.

The nation of this remarkable signal Corps picture is "Powder River" and is the first and only authentic picture ever released by the U. S. government as official. The scenes shown were shot on the western front during the war.

Men in uniform have built up in various sections of the downtown business sections of Boston for the sale of tickets. Monday night is guest night at which all prominent city and state officials have been invited as well as the heads of military organizations. U. S. Senator David I. Walsh has been invited to be the speaker of the evening. Mayor Curley of Boston and Governor Cox of Massachusetts have also been asked to address the audience.

This picture has been brought to Boston after a successful extended tour of two years through the Middle West and Northwestern sections of the country.

TERTIST SOLOIST

Lionel Tertle, the English violin virtuoso, who is now on his first American tour, will make his Boston Orchestra at the next regular performance of the Boston Symphony orchestra to be given in Symphony Hall next Tuesday afternoon and Saturday evening. He will be heard in York Bowen's Concerto for the violin.

MOVIE MUSIC NO LONGER SHOCKING

"Musical games played in accompaniment with motion pictures should be as treated that the audience is entirely unconscious of hearing any music at all," says Brewster N. Mirskay, new musical director and conductor at the reorganized Fenway Theatre.

"This can be accomplished," continues Mr. Mirskay, "by obtaining perfect unity between the music on the screen and the character of the music in the orchestra pit. The idea has developed so far that now the synchronization comes down to a matter of minutes, and even seconds."

In a slight, historical summary, Mr. Mirskay explained that the first real musical score adapted to a picture was tried out in London fifteen years ago, with a production called "There's a Queen" depicting the life of Queen Victoria. The attempt met with little success, however. An initial effort in this country came with Griffith's "Birth of a Nation."

Then the Triangle and Paramount companies began issuing musical scores with every production and gradually the scheme culminated in the excellent scheme arranged today. Mr. Mirskay, who is a native of Poland, was graduated from the Warsaw Conservatory, at the time when Paderewski was director. He served six months with the Russian army on the Eastern front, being wounded. For three years he was director for the Crandall Theatre in Washington, and then with Hu. Reinhardt in New York.

Pantomime Handed Down By Very Early Greeks
Because an actor in a comedian, it doesn't mean that he is not a student of the more serious stage, but that he doesn't appreciate the "best which his art offers. That the Sherry, comedian of "Mary Jane McKane," as the Sherry, is a serious student of the Greek tragedies proves the argument.

"When I played in 'Fiddlers Three,' the company had a discussion as to the origin of the pantomime," says Sherry, "I was immediately interested and spent all my free time in the library, pouring over the instructive volumes of the 'Pantomime' collection in the Boston Library. I always felt that an armed guard was standing over me while I read those books. The attendant fastened this upon me as no one else was going to make away with the entire collection!"

And here he divulged his valuable information.

"Pantomime, as far as we know, originated in Greece, hundreds of years before Christ. The Greek women were heavily veiled, just as the Turkish women have been until recently, and their voices would have been so muffled that they would have been heard in the theatre with gestures and with their eyes."

Helenka Adamowska Deserts Society for the Stage, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

MISS HELENKA ADAMOWSKA, who is as talented as she is pretty, is seldom seen in Boston these days.

For the blonde-haired daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Adamowska of Cambridge is continuing her theatrical career with keener interest than ever. Boston has seen her in the Vincent Club above and other amateur productions.

I recall that during the war her rather fragile blonde beauty made a striking figure in "The White Eagle of Poland," given to aid the Polish relief.

Last year she played with Glenn Hunter, and at present, I believe, she is in New York, where she is soon to take part in another production.

The clever society-dancer made her debut in 1918 and is a member of the Sewing Circle of that year. Some of her hits include Miss Katherine Abbott, Mrs. Oliver Wolcott, she was Sybil Appleton then.

Mrs. Henry Paxton, who as Edith Bremer was one of the loveliest Miss Bridges, popular and witty Miss Higgins, who's now Mrs. Bernard F. Rogers, Jr., Princess Cantacuzene (Clariessa Currie), as well as Miss Frances Fairchild.

For the past few years Miss Fairchild has been making her home in New York with her mother, Mrs. Jack Fairchild (Charlotte Houston). It will be remembered that Mrs. "Jack" created quite a sensation among Boston's exclusive circles when it learned that she had taken up photography professionally. Now the studio of Charlotte Fairchild is known far and wide.

Walking down Beacon street the other day, I noticed those delightful twins, Fayille and Suzanne Richardson. As usual, they were dressed exactly alike. This time they wore smart gray tailcoats trimmed with possum fur, and the simplest of icy black felt hats.

These girls, who have spent much of their time studying abroad, are both making their debut this season, and a number of interesting affairs are on the cards in their honor.

MR. and MRS. WILLIAM DANA ORCUTT, of Commonwealth avenue, have been spending a few days in New York at the Ritz-Carlton.

MRS. HERBERT JACQUES, JR. (Mary Townsend) of Beacon street was of the notable group taking part in the tableaux given recently in aid of the James Jackson League.

MR. and MRS. AUGUSTUS P. LORING are back in town at the Marlborough street hotel after a long season at "Off Lots," their North Shore place at Bridle.

Looking Ahead

DECEMBER 17—"My Dear Lady," a musical play with Constance Binney, at the Shubert.

"Gennie Comes Home" at the St. James.

Swedish ballet at the Boston Opera House.

DECEMBER 16—"Big Brother," a film story by Rex Beach, at the Fenway.

DECEMBER 24—"Whispering Wires" a thrill play, at the Plymouth.

John Barrymore in "Hamlet" at the Boston Opera House.

"The Great Divide"

Miss Helenka Adamowska

Miss Adamowska, member of the Vincent Club and the Sewing Circle, continues to find the theatrical stage more fascinating than the social.

Continuing Films

Lillian Gish in "The White Slave" at the Majestic. (Second week.)

Miss Gish shown in the most dramatic role she has ever played. A rare story, brilliantly presented.

"Scaramouch" at the Park. (Fifth week.) An inspiring picture showing incidents in the French Revolution, splendidly acted by Ramon Novarro, Lewis Stone and Alice Terry.

Harold Lloyd in "Why Worry" at the Fenway. (Third week.)

Most amusing of Mr. Lloyd's recent pictures, combining thrills and romance with the best of screen fun.

Mischia Elman In But One Local Appearance

Only once will Mischia Elman's violin make itself heard in Boston this season, and that will be tomorrow afternoon when she appears to recital at the Boston Opera House.

New from Europe and the Orient bid for the most brilliant of the violin, in rivalry with the big Mischia Elman.

His visits must of necessity become less frequent.

With the artistic collaboration of his sister, Lisa Elman, pianist, he will be heard tomorrow in an interesting program.

RUSSIANS TO STAGE NEW INVASION

The Russians are coming again!

F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest announce a return visit to Boston of the Moscow Art Theatre, with the same Russian players who were seen in a notable engagement at the Majestic Theatre last season. On the occasion the engagement here will be played at the Boston Opera House, and for one week only, opening New Year's Eve, December 31.

In the repertoire for the week are five new plays, not presented here last season, including but three of the plays which were here during the previous visit of the Moscow Art Theatre.

The repertoire is as follows: Monday night, December 31, "The Merchant of Venice"; Tuesday night, "The Merchant of Venice"; Wednesday night, "The Merchant of Venice"; Thursday night, "The Merchant of Venice"; Friday night, "The Merchant of Venice"; Saturday night, "The Merchant of Venice"; Sunday night, "The Merchant of Venice".

City Girl Has Edge On Her Country Sister

"City girls who join the chorus have much more pep than their sisters from the country," declares Stella Williams, who directs "The City Girl" coming to the Gayety.

And Mollie ought to know, for she began her career in burlesque, which ultimately led to a similar role and the ownership of her own show, as a humble member of the chorus.

"The country girl" comes from the farm," continues Miss Williams, "a strong on colour, but shy on style and class. After a short time she attains these two essentials, but her city sister has them from the start."

The city girl has been thrown on her own resources from the cradle and is, therefore, always alert. The chorus of today is far ahead of that of ten years ago. The war widened the field from which we could draw. Girls attracted then by warlike war are bringing in others. Today we can line up youth, pep and form in burlesque choruses, and get it. Ten or fifteen years ago we had to take what we could get."

Stock Game Not As Simple As It Appears

If you believe George A. Gills and he has a convincing style in argument—the operation of a successful stock company is not as simple as it looks to the anxious outsider.

"It is not all glorious profit," explains the gentleman of the St. James. "As, for example, he compares, 'we have the largest and most expensive orchestra in the city, whereas most theatres presenting dramatic attractions have none at all, we pay a rental for our theatre that reaches a figure nearly if not quite as high as most of the downtown houses; we have to build a new production every week, then have it away, although our higher priced neighbors build one production a season, and when you get down to up-to-the actors, don't forget that we engage them by the season and have to pay their salaries whether there is a part for them in the current play—or whether they spend the week at golf or other recreation.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury.

WHILE it's considered unethical for doctors to advertise, a Kansas City physician has started publishing his price list in newspapers and on billboards.

WHY shouldn't doctors have again advice the same as furniture houses and department stores?

IF a physician is willing to take your trouble out for two dollars and a half, how are you going to know about it if he doesn't advertise?

STILL, it wouldn't be very pleasant to receive a circular saying that you could have your appendix removed all next week for one buck.

BUT doctors are entitled to hold "dollar days" the same as anybody else.

HOWEVER, he hasn't got as much scope as a clothing store. A physician couldn't very well hold a fire sale.

AND it wouldn't sound right for him to reduce his prices on account of his lease being up.

BUT a doctor who makes a practice of taking out appendicitis and extracting tonsils would have a perfect right to hold a removal sale.

WE read in the newspapers every day of places where we can have our furniture upholstered, clothes repaired and automobiles fixed, but we have a hard job finding a joint where we can go and have ourselves made over.

OUR body is more important than anything else and yet of account of the medical board it's difficult for us to locate the right kind of mechanic to work on us.

IF they won't let the doctors advertise for us, there's only one thing to do. The minute you feel ill, go out and advertise for a doctor and then deduct it from his bill.

ASSUME RESPONSIBILITIES IF YOU WANT TO GET AHEAD.

You dislike business; you hate figures; you want to dabble, with as little thought as possible, every troublesome question which comes to you; and still you blame luck for not having made a greater success of your life.

Years ago, had you assumed responsibilities, taken a heavy load of debt with its consequent planning to meet obligations, you might have been in better stead, with the "brown stone front" of your early dreams.

But you were unwilling to accept this burden, so be a good sport and do not blame your poor circumstances and aimless existence.

You have had your good time and now about all that is left is you is to use your head and make the best of what you can get.

Winning commitment of sweetheart on her approaching twenty-fourth birthday anniversary. I promised to send her two dozen roses, a rose for each year, I gave the order to the florist, an intimate friend of mine, with instructions to send the best. Waiting to please me more and not knowing the object in view, he added an extra half-dozen roses to the order. Can you imagine how I and the sweetheart felt when upon receiving the roses she counted thirty instead of twenty-four?
